

ASSOCIATION OF MUNICIPALITIES AND DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITIES (AMDA)

AMDA is a think tank for planned development of town and cities in India and a forum for advocacy of progressive urban development and management issues & policies through the process of regional planning based on rural urban continuum.

AMDA envisions itself as an organisation which promotes decentralization and institutionalization of empowered local government bodies with the following areas of activities:

- 01 Capacity Building: Conduct participatory training programmes for professional development in different functional areas through workshops, seminars and short in-house training programmes.
- 02 Information Exchange and Dissemination: Develop a database on municipal governance by multifaceted documentation, exchange through meetings and disseminate it through publications and newsletters.
- 03 Advocacy: Organize workshops, seminars, conference and brainstorming sessions for reforms and advocacy in the sphere of good urban governance.
- 04 Building partnership and networks: Build partnerships and networks with academic institutions, research institutions, NGOs as well as with the Central, State and Local Government Institutions and International Agencies.
- 05 Urban and Regional Planning: Promote the regional planning approach, taking into account the holistic nature of human settlement systems, rather than just rural or urban development policies in isolation.
- 06 Research and Studies: Conduct research and in-depth appraisal of programmes and projects relating to urban development.
